McDonnell Academy Scholars

McDonnell Scholars are students from across the globe and interdisciplinary academic programs, who come to Washington University for an extraordinary educational experience as they pursue doctoral and professional master's degrees in: architecture, business, engineering, law, medicine, neuroscience, social work, or any of the 75+ eligible academic programs. In addition to academic talent, McDonnell Scholars are selected based on their ability to emerge as leaders who are experts in their fields with perspectives that reflect cultural competence. Graduates acquire a unique global outlook and develop the ability to generate positive change in their communities and around the world.

The McDonnell Academy aims to educate a community of scholars from around the globe and across disciplines, preparing them to address global challenges as leaders in their professions and communities.
